Modern Sword Of Damocles

At the ancient banquet, the tyrant Dionysius once seated a self serving courtier Damocles, with a sword suspended over his head by a single hair.

A modern parallel was drawn the other day by Thomas J. Riordan, past state commander of the American Legion, speaking before a group of peacefully seated people in the Palace Hotel in the center of a dimmed-out San Francisco. "I'm here," he said, "to urge upon you the strict observance of dim-out and other war-time regulations for public safety.

"You do not look frightened. And good Americans need not be frightened of the veritable Damocles' sword hanging over their cities—the threat of bombs from the sky or shells from enemy ships off-shore—if they are diligent to protect themselves as asked by our defense authorities and military command."

People of the war-dimmed Pacific coast are not cringing from the modern Damocles' sword that hangs overhead. But they must be well and eternally aware of it—and ready to abide by all war-time regulations for their own and other citizens' safety.

No speed limit will be posted in the new dim-out areas, for the basic speed law will apply. The basic speed law, C. V. C. 510, provides that "No person shall drive a vehicle upon a highway at a speed greater than is reasonable or prudent having due regard for the traffic on and the surface and width of the highway, and in no event at a speed which endangers the safety of persons or property."

Pedestrians are urged by the Public Safety department of the National Automobile association to wear light colored clothing or carry something white during the dim-out and semi-blackout lighting restrictions. A motorist can't miss what he can't see, and the pedestrian will do well to protect himself from an accident by making it possible for drivers to see him by wearing something white at night.

Asks for Help Regarding Post

We feel that it will be necessary to repair the observation post so that it will be warmer this winter. It will need to be lined with celotex and insulated with paper. We will also need wood and kindling for the fire.

Many are giving their time and money to carry on this work and we feel that all the citizens should have the opportunity of helping in a financial way at least.

There is also need for more watchers. This is your post and protects your homes and families.

Please leave all contributions at the Campbell Water company office. Thank you.

Kiwanians Hold Barbecue at Ray Bishop Home

Members of Campbell Kiwanis to the number of twenty-four united in enjoying a barbecue at the Ray Bishop summer home in the western foot hills Tuesday evening. Participating as guests were Fred Jones, Ethan Lanphear, J. F. Levenburg and G. S. Robson.

The chefs proved very capable and the frijoles had been prepared by one of Campbell's good house wives.

Next Tuesday Dr. Ianne of the county hospital staff will be the speaker and show movies of the work being done to prevent and cure tuberculosis.

Ben Davison will be chairman.

Jane Taylor Is Honored At Betrothal Party

Miss Jane Taylor was the guest of honor at a bethrothal shower held recently in Alum Rock given by Mrs. Earl Waltrip ,and the Misses Winona Beach and Therese Robillard.

Mrs. Waltrip was the former Alice Foster and all three of the hostesses were fellow graduates with Miss Taylor in the June class of this year of the Campbell Union High school of which she was student body president, the only girl to have held that position.

The benedict to be is Robert Drennon an alumnus of the same school class of '41.

The young people have chosen Sunday, Oct. 11, for their wedding day.

Local Graduate Studies Welding

Miss Hazel Jean Morrill, a member of the 1942 graduating class of Campbell High school is taking a welding course at the Grant Union High school in Sacramento, which she will soon complete. She will start work immediately thereafter at the Richmond shipyards.

The San Jose Technical High school also is conducting welding classes 24 hours a day, starting at 2:30 a. m. and every four hours thereafter.

Robert D. Metcalfe, labor relations representative of the Richmond Shipbuilding company states that they need 500 welders now and prefer hiring women because they will not be drafted, just about the time they become really expert, and the ones now employed are doing a wonderful job.

He says the only two requirements for a job are, the woman must be 18 years old, and able to weld. Wages for a woman who meets the requirements starts at $1.05 an hour.

This opens a new line of industry to women and helps promote the war effort.

Court Schuler Dies Saturday

Court Schuler, well known in Campbell several years ago as the first owner of Court's Cabin on the San Jose-Los Gatos road, was found dead in his house on the Denhart ranch near Almaden Saturday night. He had been a caretaker on the ranch for some time and was found by the owner, Dr. Howard Markel.

According to Deputy Coroner Pat Battle, Schuler's death was caused by cirrhosis of the liver, from which he had been suffering for many years.

After selling Courts Cabin, Mr. and Mrs. Schuler operated the Chateau and also the Palm Inn both on the Monterey highway for some time before their separation in 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thompson are parents of a daughter, Kathleen Ellen, born August 19 at O'Connor sanitarium.

A new mathematical machine, the nimatron, named for the Chinese game Nim, was recently shown.

Tom Farley Is Given Local Preacher's License

At the mornnig service of the Campbell Methodist church last Sunday Thomas K. Farley ,son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Farley, was presented a local preacher's license upon the recommendation of the local church. A special presentation was conducted by Rev. Donald Baldwin.

On Monday Tom began his classroom work at the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley. While attending school in Berkeley he will do special work in the office of the California Conference of Methodist youth in San Francisco. He has just completed a year as president of this group of youth.

As a part of the morning service Tom reported on the highly successful summer institute program just completed.

Most Schools to Open Sept. 28

Most of Santa Clara county schools will open Sept. 28, but a few of the educational institutions have set other dates.

The University of Santa Clara registered freshmen yesterday and day scholars are enrolling today. Returning resident students will register tomorrow and Saturday with classes beginning Monday, August 31.

San Jose's branch registration office for the federal rent-control signup, scheduled to close last Saturday will remain open until Saturday, August 29. Office hours are 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Operators of hotels and rooming houses must file before midnight, August 31 .

Merlin Bohnett returned this morning from Santa Ana and will report back Tuesday for service in the finance department of the air corps.

Cooperation In Dim-out Here Is Satisfactory

Cooperation in the dim-out regulations in the Campbell district has been very satisfactory, zone warden W. H. Van Dyke reports. Neon lights have been eliminated.

In the Drew Cannery reflectors were installed on all its indoor as well as out door lights, so that there is no glow through the sky lights.

Campbell's street lights already had reflecting shields over the lights so that no changes were needed for them.

Shaded lights outdoors are permissible under the army order, Leonard T. Cronkite, P. G. & E. illumination engineer said. Persons who have lights in their driveways, yards and gardens may continue to use them, provided the lights are properly shaded so that they do not throw light into the sky.

If a garden or yard light is 20 feet above ground, a 100-watt blub will be considered safe if it is properly shaded above. At 15 feet, only a 60-watt light, properly shaded, will be considered safe, and shorter poles will require lower wattages. Outdoor lights cannot be permitted to reflect from white houses.

Evening barbecues may be held, provided the fire is shielded from above.

Shades need not be drawn on home windows and there is no restriction on flashlights, if not flashed upward.

In San Jose, cars may be driven with full lights. In areas nearer the coast, cars must be driven on parking lights, but in San Jose this will continue to be a violation of the law.

Sugar Ration Stamp 8 Valid Until Oct. 31

Stamp No. 8 in the sugar ration books became available August 23 and is valid for purchase of five pounds of sugar any time in the 10-week period between that date and Oct. 31. This does not increase the actual allotment, as it means only one-half pound per person per week.

The object of the change is to permit the sale of 5, 10, and 25 pound packages thus eliminating so much repackaging.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wells and daughter Diane are expected this evening for a short visit with Mrs. Wells' mother, Mrs. Hattie Baugh. They have been spending a few days in Yosemite and are returning via Campbell to their home in Los Angeles.

Miss Helen Buck enjoyed the sea breezes at Carmel for four days over the week-end while visiting a friend there.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Parker, a daughter, Betty Joan, at San Jose hospital, Aug. 17.

Prune Harvest Volunteers Needed Now

The prune harvest is underway and it will not be long before tomatoes will be ready too, says Harvey Hansen, administrative officer for the Santa Clara county USDA War Board. Hansen says, "We have a large number of migrants in the county who are working on the prune harvest at present, and we also have a large number of adult and student volunteers but we need more volunteers to be signed up and allotted out to the growers at the present time.

All dried fruit has been frozen for government use and it is, therefore, part of the war effort to volunteer for work in the harvests.

Volunteers in the Campbell area can sign up at the Campbell Union High school, or the San Jose office of the U. S. Employment Service, 215 W. Santa Clara street.

Practically anyone who signs up can be assured of work with the full understanding that they are doing their share toward helping to feed the Army, Navy and Marines, as well as our civilian population. Our boys are doing their share of fighting and getting ready to fight, but they can't fight without food.

More volunteers, please.

Sixth District PTA Conference Monday, Aug. 31

Mrs. Douglas Jones, president of sixth district, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will conduct a school of instruction for P.-T. A. presidents and committee chairmen on Monday, August 31, at Peter Burnett Junior High school.

Mrs. C. E. Fagalde, Mrs. Life Price, Mrs. Worthin Grattan and Mrs. Carl Field will represent the Campbell High school unit at this meeting.

Three state officers, Mesdames Garland, Byars and Ralston, will be present to assist at the conference, when plans will be outlined for the work of the coming school year.

Klaude Block who had been with the American Trust bank in San Jose in the safe deposit department was transferred recently to an advanced position in the same company's bank in Palo Alto. As yet he is commuting to his new work.

The ladies of the Los Gatos Gymkhana association will sponsor a cowboy dance at the Odd Fellows hall, Santa Cruz avenue, Los Gatos, Aug. 29 for the benefit of the U. S. O. Come and bring your friends.

Funeral services were held this morning in San Jose for Edgar A. Bowen, brother of Albert Bowen of Campbell.

THE NAZI PURGE OF BRAINS

The story of the Nazi purge of Christianity is old and sordid and bloody. Hitler carried it on in his own country before the war, and continued it ruthlessly in every country he occupied.

Now, obviously, the Himmler Gestapo is carrying out orders for a new type of purge intended to destroy the will to resist among cowed peoples—a firing squad pattern of death for men of intelligence and talent. Among the hostages the Nazis murder in reprisals, according to the British secret service, the names of professors, doctors, clergymen, scientists, and political leaders predominate.

"The Germans are trying to kill all the leaders and intellectuals who have the following and ability to engineer any organized resistance," a Czech government spokesman declared in London.

The two purges go hand in hand. The Nazi reason, apparently, that to enslave a people it is necessary only to uproot faith and destroy leadership. Theoretically, it might seem brutally feasible—but history in all ages has proven impossible the destruction of faith and of intelligence.

Religious persecution always intensifies faith—in the long run. Hitler and Mussolini must realize this, at least dimly, else they would murder Pius XII, whom they must hate for his iron resolution in opposing all their butcheries and persecutions. They dare not even molest him. The assassination of the Pope, of the Archbishop of Canterbury, of the heads of all sects, would result in a renewed, resistless flame of religious fervor throughout the world.

The intelligence of a people cannot be killed, for it constantly renews itself, and from mysterious sources. Who would have thought—had American intelligence been purged by murder in 1840, of killing lanky, backwoods Abraham Lincoln? The Germans thought Russia's "peasant army" would be soft for their brilliant tacticians. And a peasant general, Timoshenko, has proven a match for men trained lifelong in the Prussian military tradition.

The Nazis may purge many men from the bloody scene of Europe. But they can never purge Europe of intelligence—or faith.

CRIME WITH A CIGARET

Mr. B. Powers, of Chews Ridge Lookout, Salinas, has written a telling editorial against the crime of carelessness with fire in California's forests in a letter to the Los Angeles Times. He wrote, in part:

"A recent fire which started in Peliz Canyon, near King City, burned 32,500 acres—brush land, timber, grazing and wheat fields.

"Trapped in rugged canyons and burned to death were 40 head of cattle and 80 head of horses and mules. Beautiful horses, some running desperately through the blazing brush, had been so badly seared that their tails were burned off and their eyes blinded. Some were found and mercifully shot by their owners. Many does with their spring fawns were trapped in the canyons.

"An exhausted fire fighter, hot, thirsty and stumbling, came across two singed and bedraggled fawns. Evidently motherless, they were looking for shade and water. For miles there was blackened waste, no shade, the springs choked with ashes or dried. He pitied them but could give no assistance.

"If the person who carelessly dropped a cigaret which smoldered by the roadside could have seen this sight, or if he had had to fight this fire, he would have learned a real lesson."

MEAT RATION DAYS?

Meat rationing days may usher in the next war-born shortages to affect the lives of some 130 million Americans. Caught between the high price of livestock and fixed retail price ceilings, the meat packing industry has been begging the OPA to act swiftly to save many of its small members from enforced bankruptcy. Some have already closed down, the unfortunate victims of a price control plan which has clamped the lid tight on just one side of the inflation steam kettle and left the other uncovered.

Now a situation has developed where either price ceilings must be raised, or ceiling prices placed on livestock. The third alternative is meat rationing, but not because there isn't a sufficiency of it in the country. The obvious reason is that if packers and meat markets must pay more for what they buy than they are permitted to sell it for they can't continue buying meat and stay in business.

Every effort has been made by retailers to make the price control program work, but all the toil and tears in the world can't countermand natural economic law. Since May 18, shoppers have seen living costs keep on rising. Why? Not because ceilings were being ignored—as a matter of fact, items under price control have declined—but because many items, including farm prices and union wages, were left uncontrolled. If we're going to place genuine checks on living costs, we've got to control everything that sends living costs up.

To date, largely because of political pressure, we have failed to do this, so living costs have kept on rising and meat ration days may be near. Half measures won't hold the lid on the inflationary steam kettle.

THE DRAFT OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

The meaning of total war was made sharply clear last week when Clifford Britton, farm placement representative of the United States Employment Service, declared that the women and children of California must be looked to to harvest the crops of 1943. The farm labor shortage of the present is acute Britton said—but he termed the current lack of men for farm work only comparatively serious in view of the proseect for next year.

"At present there are 75,000 farm workers in the Southern California fields," he said; "but by January 1 the farmers will need 80,000 more. And during this same period the shipyards will require 60,000 more workers, aircraft industries 40,000, and general factories 30,000."

In other words, the nation's man-power will be utilized to the full in direct war effort, with the men not in the armed forces commandeered to keep war industries at peak production. Women and children must fill the breach of labor shortage on the food production front; not in gay uniforms, not in glamour but in hard labor for long hurs under a hot sun.

America's enemies built their diabolic power by the methods of total war this country must now adopt. But the grim picture has its bright side. If it takes the last able-bodied woman and schoolboy to meet the test, this nation will meet it. One hundred and thirty million Americans, fighting for freedom, cannot be beaten.

SLOW MOTION

Completion of a bay region housing project for shipyard workers was held up last week. Priorities? Material shortages? Wage dispute? Collective bargaining row? Manpower shortage? None of these. It was due to a union protest against the use of paint spray machines instead of time-consuming hand brushes. Slow motion can help lose, but never win, a war.

By BETTY BARCLAY

"Let's have some turnips for a change!" How often we housewives hear or make this remark! It may be turnips, mince pie, apple sauce or almost anything, but we do want a change from those foods that our 'cooking rut" forces us into serving day after day and week after week.

Along this line, how about a good old macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodle delicacy "for a change"? Meat and potatoes is a popular food combination relished by all, but any of the macaroni products may be served instead of potatoes as a welcome change — without lessening the food value or increasing the cost of the meal.

Have you ever tried serving buttered egg noodles or fried macaroni in order to banish menu monotony? These are money savers, time savers and labor savers. No peeling or cleaning is necessary. There is no waste. And, in combination dishes they are economical, nutritious — and real "for a change" dishes, — equally delicious with meat, fish or fowl.

Macaroni, spaghetti, elbows, and egg noodles, the whole macaroni family in fact, — since they are interchangeable in practically all recipes, will prove wonderful substitutes for other healthful carbohydrate and protein foods — for a change. Try the following recipes and you will agree:

Broiled Hamburger Steaks with Spaghetti

½ lb. spaghetti
1 lb. hamburger
1 sweet Spanish onion
4 medium tomatoes or 1 No. 1 can of tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the spaghetti in boiling water, salted, until tender; drain and place in pan beneath broiling rack. On the broiling rack place the hamburgers, shaped into four equal sized patties. Broil the meat slowly — when it is nearly finished, place on the rack the onion sliced and the tomatoes cut in halves. Add a little salt, pepper and butter on top of each and broil while the meat completes cooking. The juices from the meat and vegetables drip below and season the spaghetti.

If fresh tomatoes are not available, pour the can of tomatoes over the spaghetti at the beginning of the broiling process and it will season the spaghetti and heat through while the meat and onions are broiling. Serves 4.

Cubed Steaks with Creamed Cheese Dressing and Egg Noodles

4 individual cubed steaks (about ½ pound each)
4 tablespoons creamed cheese dressing (Roquefort or other sharp cheese)
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ lb. egg noodles

Cook egg noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and place in pan beneath broiling rack. Cream the cheese and blend thoroughly with the Worcestershire sauce. Broil steaks until nearly finished, then spread on them the cheese mixture. Return to broiler until cheese is melted and drips freely onto the egg noodles below the meat. Serve at once. Serves 4.

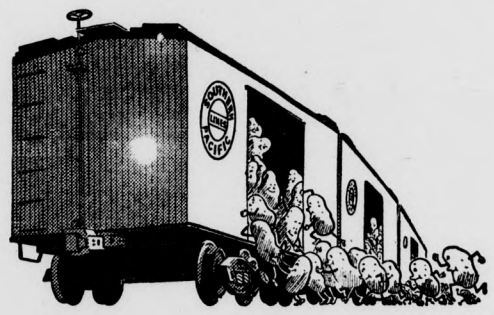
To further vary the menu monotony, try serving well-seasoned, buttered egg noodles or spaghetti in place of potatoes. This makes a delicious and satisfying change. Here's a recipe that comes highly recommended:

Fried Macaroni with Cheese

Boil 1 lb. macaroni or elbows in plenty of boiling, salted water; drain. In a heavy iron frying pan, melt 3 tablespoons of butter. Add a little olive oil, if you like that flavor; it will keep the butter from "burning." Add the macaroni. Stir it to slightly brown a substantial portion of the macaroni.

Pour on platter, season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with grated cheese. Serve hot.

(A praise-worthy luncheon dish. Equally good with meat, fish or fowl.)



The story of the PATRIOTIC POTATOES

The shortage of critical materials has interfered with freight car construction, and war traffic places severe demands on the present supply of cars. Consequently, the Office of Defense Transportation and the railroads have asked shippers to load freight cars more heavily, because the bigger the load in each car, the fewer cars required. Thus more cars will be available for war traffic.

Well, the potato growers on our lines in Kern County, California, decided to see what they could do about it. They had 26,896 tons of potatoes to ship, which would normally require 1,775 freight cars. By loading three extra tons of potatoes in each car, they got their crop into 1,499 cars, releasing 276 badly needed cars for other purposes.

This is an outstanding example of the voluntary cooperation that shippers are giving at many points on our lines, and elsewhere in the United States. It is helping to keep war goods and vital materials moving smoothly and swiftly to the places where they're needed. We think these shippers deserve a vote of thanks for their constructive action in behalf of the war effort.

THE SMALLEST BOMBER—Tossing a well-placed hand grenade into the center of a command post, a machine gun nest or an enemy pill box, the commando-trained infantrymen combines the bombing functions of the Air Forces with his own, that of taking and holding ground.

GUARDIANS OF THE LINE—On either flank of the infantry line, the machine gun crew is an ever-alert sentinel to protect their comrades from being surrounded or flanked. Spitting hundreds of bullets in one breath, their weapon is easily carried, hidden and mounted ready for action.

WHERE I STAND, AMERICA RULES—Infantry is proud that wherever stands one of its men, it is a declaration that the United States has taken that ground and a pledge that, once taken, that ground will be held against the enemy.

DESTROYER ON LAND—A heavy, rapid-fire cannon mounted on a half-track armored car, that's the self-propelled artillery, the answer to the Armored Force's need to thrust heavy artillery firepower directly into the core of its lightning attacks.

To Live Solo

Because it costs too much to import a new wife for the senior elephant in the Buenos Aires, Argentina, zoo, he is condemned to a protracted widowerhood. When wife No. 1 died recently inquiries were made in the United States for a mate, but it was found that transport charges to Argentina would be $10,000, too much for the zoo's purse.

Snake Yields a Doorknob

A black snake that was too full to "run" has ended the mystery of what happened to W. A. Boggan's doorknob. Boggan said he captured the snake and found his doorknob, missing six months, inside.

Pharmacopoeia

A little Chicago girl asks whether she can go to the "drunk" store to buy a comic book. Another likes to go to the "bug" store to buy a "wifethaver." Still another little girl, on her first visit to a downtown department store, said wonderingly: "My, this is a big drug store."

Christian Science Churches

On all Christian Science churches a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, August 30, on the subject "Christ Jesus." The Golden Text will be: "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ," (John 1: 17).

Bible selections will include the following passage from Luke 9: 1, 2, 6: "Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the gospel, and healing every where."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook will also be included in the Lesson-Sermon, which reads as follows: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. He taught his followers that his religion had a divine Principle, which would cast out error and heal both the sick and the sinning," (p. 136).

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"Full Flood" by Percy Marks.

Here, at last, is a book whose theme is not wholly war-fare. To say that there is absolutely nothing in it about the war would be untrue, however, the small bit does not color it—on the other hand it only brings it up to date. For what day goes by but we, each of us, discusses the war at least with one person.

To get right into the story, first we are introduced to the minor hero of our tale. Dr. Richard Kingman, a physician and surgean of no small renown, who plays a big part when he takes it upon himself to give what professional assistance he can to Terry Price the hero, who is a hunchback.

Terry is twenty-five and a graduate of Stanford. His health is none too good. Since completing his course at the university, he has been doing nothing except what his doting parents thought good for him, such as sun bathing, eating and sleeping. The locale of the story is San Francisco and vicinity, the specific suburb in which Terry's and incidentally Dr. Kingman's home are located is fictionally Los Perros.

One bright, warm day Dr. Kingman was strolling up the hill to his home when he spotted Terry crouched down behind some shrubs in his yard, apparently gardening. By mere chance their eyes met and Terry, easily and graciously introduced himself and made it known to the Dr. that he had been recognized. From that moment until the end of the book those two travel far in friendship in medical aid, in strong emotions and in matters dear to all of us. Mrs. Kingman is a dear person and adds charm to the story.

Terry, because of his physical handicap, had been greatly handicapped emotionally, simply because he felt that every normal person pitied him. Dr. Kingman thought that he might possibly be able to perform an operation on the hump which would change the boy's life, but after thorough examinations and consultations it was decided that nothing could be done. He was then determined to try and build up Terry's resistance, by getting him to exercise and to watch his diet and try to gain weight.

Nan Stephens, a dream girl from Oakland, claims Terry's heart, though he tries futilly to deny he cares. It will stir your heart. The author has written another book with as deep an emotional theme as his novel a few years back titled "A Tree Grown Straight."

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Every part of this nation is dependent on every other part in this period of national emergency; the city worker, doing his utmost to speed the wheels of war production, is dependent on the country worker for his food and clothing and raw materials, and the men in our armed forces are dependent on the combined output of urban and rural areas for their supplies, just as the people at home are dependent on the men in the army and navy to protect their freedom and security.

Dependent on each other, it follows that we have vital need to be understanding of each other—and sympathetic in our approach to the other fellow's problems.

A case in point is the debate now raging over parity, particularly as it affects the farmer.

There has been considerable caustic criticism, emanating form both official and unofficial sources, directed against farm groups for asking ceilings 110 per cent of parity, instead of 100 per cent. But it would be well for government experts and other critics to remember that farmers' incomes were considerably below parity many years while incomes of city workers were well above parity. And this disparity is even more pronounced now.

If city people want food and fibers they must encourage prices which will enable farmers to pay labor enough to keep it on the farm. At the present time, farm labor is being drawn away by the above parity wages in urban industries .This is a most serious problem—and it isn't just a farm problem, for the great cities would be paralyzed over night if their back country failed to come through with a regular supply of food and raw materials.

Farmers are not being selfish in their approach to this issue—and it is to be hoped that the cities will recognize this. Farmers are seeing their ability to produce crumbling before their eyes, due to their inability to hold their workers. And there is little the farmer can do to avert disaster if the men in the cities —and the men in high places in government—do not view the problem with sympathy and understanding.

The farmer is a thoroughgoing patriot; is now, and always has been. He has gone all-out to beat the Axis and will gamble everything he possesses to aid this country in its time of need. Since this nation began, rural America has produced much of the nation's man-power. Business and industry, the army and the navy—they all like to draw their recruits from the farm. They like the characteristics of the farm boy; they like his moral and physical stamina. But if they wish to continue drawing on this reserve supply of man-power they had better recognize the needs of the farmer during this crisis. The wages of farm labor have not been used in computing parity—and wages constitute an important item in the farmer's costs. The farmer will still eat no matter whether a fair agreement is worked out on parity or not. But what about the city man? Urban America had better think it over!

Another case, now much in the press, which requires better public understanding—and most careful consideration, if irreparable damage is not to be done to a California industry—involves the negotiations now pending for a reciprocal trade agreement with Iran, better known as Persia.

Iran produces less than 5 per cent of the world supply of almonds. California grows all the American production. This proposed trade agreement does by indirection what, if the government does it, should be done directly. Under the most favored nation clause, this agreement would mean that after the war floods of almonds from Spain, North Africa and probably enemy Italy, the world's largest producers, would invade and probably break the American market. Inasmuch as transportation from Iran is now almost impossible, it is hard to understand the present rush for this agreement.

America is now trying to finance and win a war. Why, then, take action now which would put American producers out of business during the critical post-war period to follow?

California date growers face the same danger under this agreement and these growers were literally started in the business by the federal government which urged and helped them to enter the date industry. This reciprocal trade agreement would, in effect, wreck the government's own handiwork.

The other fellow's problems need careful, sympathetic consideration today; that other fellow is the chap who is fighting right beside you —and you can't win without him!

Refrigerated Rodents

Lemmings are rodents found chiefly in the Arctic regions They resemble large field mice, having small ears and long fluffy fur. Certain species of this animal migrate in great swarms, damaging crops, and crossing all obstacles, even bodies of water. When they reach the sea many plunge in and are drowned.

Advice to Charlie Chaplin

By IRVIN S. COBB

WHEN General Neville, the hero of the defense of Verdun, was making his tour of America he was the guest of honor at a big public reception in one of the Los Angeles hotels. Among those invited to meet the distinguished visitor were the more prominent members of the moving-picture colony.

At the doors of General Neville's suite Will Rogers met Charlie Chaplin. Chaplin, who in private life is a reserved and rather shy little man, was considerably fussed up over the prospect ahead of him.

"I suppose we're expected to say a few words to the General," he confided to Rogers. "But for the life of me I can't think of the best way to start the conversation."

Rogers gave to the problem a moment of earnest consideration.

"Well," he said, "you might ask him if he was in the war, and which side he was on."
